Center offering help for adults raised by alcoholic parents

by Crickett Drake
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The Wellness Center is expanding its programming by adding a program for Adult Children of Alcoholics.

The group meets in the Wellness Center every Wednesday at 3 p.m. and is led by Debra Kusma of the Counseling & Testing Center.

Kusma said, "The most obvious definition of an ACOA [Adult Child of an Alcoholic] is a person reared in families with an alcoholic or problem drinker and has been affected in some way by this". The National Association for Children of Alcoholics says ACOAs are people who have an adjustment reaction to familiar alcoholism which is recognizable, diagnosable, and treatable. No matter what the definition, ACOAs seem to have similar backgrounds and common characteristics. Experts tend to agree that the following traits are generally shared by ACOAs:

- low self-esteem
- difficulty trusting other people
- difficulty with interpersonal relationships
- fear of losing control
- overly responsible.

Kusma said anyone raised in a family with a parent with compulsive behavior could show similar symptoms. This larger notion of Adult Children of Trauma is one she is willing to include in the group she'll be working with.

The process to be followed by the group, as

Communicating

Program to bring leaders together

by Doris Pfister
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Last year's Student Roundtable is being resurrected with its purpose intact and its membership broadened.

Now to be known as the University Roundtable, the program will include administrators, faculty and staff members, and students working to improve the university community.

According to Student Government Vice President and student director of the University Roundtable J.J. Mandato, "The University Roundtable represents campus leaders involved in a dialogue of interest to the campus community.

"The Roundtable will bring together campus leaders in all areas," he added. "I hope the members will be able to sit down and develop communication about ideas and focus on areas of concern and interest."

The program is similar to the inauguration of last year's Student Roundtable. However, the name has been changed to avoid confusion with the National Student Roundtable, a student lobbying group.

But Mandato explains that the main reason the name was changed was because the Roundtable will not consist of just students. "This is a chance for students and leaders to get to know the administration. They will have the opportunity to promote the university together."

Last year's Student Roundtable was successful in some of its goals; however, due to a partial lack of organization, the Roundtable broke off into separate committees.

Last year's Roundtable did provide additional lighting on campus and on the basketball courts, additional building signs, and another front entrance sign for the university.

The Roundtable also provided a liaison between SG and the state and put a Student Senate representative on the Faculty Senate.

The generation of ideas is very important in such a program, according to Mandato. "Once the ideas come up we can start working on them and start making things happen."

"Things aren't going to happen overnight, but in the long run this program will be very beneficial for everyone."

Mandato said, "I think this year's University Roundtable will be more prestigious than last year's Student Roundtable. I'm also hoping for more involvement from the clubs and organizations."

About 80 percent of last year's Roundtable consisted of Student Government-affiliated students. Mandato explained that the Roundtable should be separate from Student Government, focusing more on the regular student aspect.

"We want to keep it open to all students," Mandato said.

Fewer students think they need escorts at night

by Suzan E. Curth
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The Student Escort Patrol Service has received less than half as many requests for escorts as the program a year ago, according to police.

Lt. Arthur Stout of the UCF Police Department said this could be because there have not been any campus disturbances lately.

SEPS, which provides free campus escorts at night, was initiated in 1983 by then-chief of police Ronald Seacrist. Seacrist had found a similar program to be successful at larger campuses like Tulane, and he decided to set one up at UCF.

Stout said, "It was definitely a fantastic idea. There was a need for assuring safety, even though we haven't had any degree of problems. It's been proven over the years that the program does work well."

SEPS is in operation seven days a week from 7 p.m. to 11:45 p.m. Stout explained that because UCF is basically a commuter school, there is little call for SEPS on Friday and Saturday nights.

In previous months an average of 30 to 40 escorts were requested by female students each weeknight. Lately the number has fallen to between 15 and 20. In January 1987 the total number of escorts for that month was 273. This past month about 150 escorts were recorded.

And why are fewer women taking advantage of SEPS?

"Nothing has happened on campus—no attacks or assaults," said SEPS Coordinator Tim Shields. "They have a safe feeling. But, why take chances? We're being paid to escort, it's a free service. Why not take advantage of it?"

Shields, as well as other SEPS, said that many of the females they approach do not take them seriously. "I've asked many girls, 'Would you like an escort?' and they look at you as if to say, 'Are you just trying to pick me up?'" said Shields.

There has been at least one young lady who wanted to see proof that Shields was, in fact, a SEP. "We're in the process of trying to get ID badges that will say we are employees of the police department," he said. "Maybe that will give them more of a secure feeling."

Shields said that a lot of times females will ask him if they really need an escort. "I reply yes, I'm a SEP and it's my job. There's always that chance that something can happen and it doesn't matter where you are. People say, 'Well, it can't happen to me,' but

WE ARE HERE FOR YOU!!

Student Government is in it's twentieth anniversary year, while the University is in it's twenty fifth. Over the years, as the University has grown, so has Student Government. It now works with a budget of over two million dollars. This money is derived from students and is used primarily to fund student activities and services. Admission to all activity and service fee funded events is free to all students.

Student Government's purpose is to represent student opinion, promote communication, cooperation and understanding among students and represent student needs at the local, state and national level.

Student Government is composed of three branches; Executive, Judicial and Legislative which work together to improve student life.

Pipe near Health Center cause of 'slimy' water

by Debbie Nelson
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Last week's pipeline break, which left the university without suitable running water, was the result of a broken feeder line near the Student Health Center.

Workers noticed leakage in the feeder line about 8:30 a.m. Feb. 16.

The line was shut off. However, some sediment did get into the main line.

Worried that the water might be dangerous to consume, officials warned the campus not to drink the water or cook with water.

Students living in the dorms were most affected by the line break. "It was about two and a half days before we could even take a shower," said Larry Guiterruz, a sophomore majoring in music education. "The worst part was trying to brush our teeth."

Guiterruz said the water was "all brown and slimy."

Mike Young, a junior majoring in engineering said that the water break was trouble even for commuters. "The restaurants were taking advantage the whole thing," he said. "They were charging 60 cents for canned drinks."

Officials said that the ban on drinking water was precautionary. "They were just following the guidelines," said Bill Daum of the Public Affairs Office. The water was sent to an lab to be tested.

As another precaution, the university flushed out the main line.

Kusma explained, will include "focusing on past hurts and events, not to relieve or lay blame, but to identify patterns". This process will allow the individuals to get in touch with their true feelings and to make their own insights. This will ultimately lead to recovery and healing, allowing the person to take responsibility for their life from here on out.

Kusma also commented on the accomplishments intended to be reached by the group members. Those considered "short-term include the actual therapeutic value of group therapy". Members of the group will find that they are not alone in their feelings and will now have a safe place to release them. The overall goal will be to counter the characteristics mentioned above that are causing trouble in a person's life. As Kusma put it "to identify characteristics that have impeded with personal growth and developing new patterns that will allow for more healthy living".

Kusma brings to the group a lot of personal experience in mental health counseling. She has been at the UCF Counseling & Testing Center for three and a half years.

Prior to that, she worked in mental health clinics, one in north Florida as the outpatient mental health counselor. Recently, she has been studying all possible literature and attending workshops on the topic of ACOA and guides to recovery.

The time to begin thinking about running for a Student Government office is now.

"Having SG experience is not required but students should realize what background the candidate has," said SG Vice President J.J. Mandato.

"Students want to know who is going to represent them. The job of president or vice president shouldn't be taken lightly; there are a lot of responsibilities."

Some of these responsibilities include representing over 17,000 students and allocating the SG budget of over $1.4 million.

"The officers are the voice of the students; they represent the whole school so their jobs are pretty important," said Mandato.

All SG officers must be enrolled in at least six hours during the fall and spring semesters and three hours during the Summer semester.

Candidates must possess a cumulative UCF GPA of no less than 2.0 and cannot be under any disciplinary actions.

Student body presidential and vice presidential hopefuls will be able to pick up their petitions between March 7 and 14. Each ticket must file a petition form with the signatures of 300 students currently enrolled at UCF.

These petitions must be returned at the time of the candidate's declaration of candidacy between March 14 and 17.

On March 18 the names of eligible candidates will be posted in the Senate Work Room.

Active campaigning will begin at 6 p.m. on April 4. According to the SG election statutes, active campaigning includes any display or distribution of tangible publicity for a candidate/ticket for an elective office of the Student Body.

The deadline for write-in candidates has been scheduled for April 5.

The area campus elections will take place April 11 and 12, while the main campus elections are scheduled for April 12 and 13.

Expense statements, listing the campaign expenditures and contributions during the campaign, are due April 14.

Run-off elections will take place April 19 and 20 between the two tickets receiving the most votes. Presidential and vice presidential candidates may serve a maximum of two consecutive terms and may not seek further elected office after the end of the terms of office.

Cynthia Woodworth, a junior and dorm resident, said, "I used to use SEPS when I knew someone who worked there. Now a lot of the time I just don't think about it."

Another student, Krys Fluker, said, "I think it's a great idea because it stops people from being raped." She stated that she uses an escort, especially for night classes. "It's nice to see students making an effort to help other students, even if they are getting paid to do it."

The number to call for an escort anywhere on campus is 275-2424. The SEP should be wearing a gold T-shirt that has a UCF emblem on the upper right-hand side. Gold windbreakers will be provided for the SEPS to use in a couple of weeks. It is hoped that the added exposure will encourage more females to take advantage of this service.

Grads finding more jobs despite market crash

Staff Report
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

Students of the Class of 1988 generally are getting more job offers and higher starting salaries than last year's grads, the College Placement Council reported Feb. 12.

Petroleum engineering majors are doing the best, getting average starting salary offers of $33,432, said CPC spokeswoman Dawn Gulick.

The CPC, Northwestern University and Michigan State University all publish forecasts of how many companies will visit campuses to recruit each year.

In their forecasts, released in December, both Northwestern and Michigan State predicted the stock market crash of Oct. 19, 1987 would narrow students' job prospects somewhat as corporations, worried that a recession would follow, said they were cutting their hiring by 5 percent.

The CPC last week said preliminary feedback from placement offices on 153 campuses indicates companies have not scaled down their hiring after all.

In fact, many types of majors say starting salary offers are rising.

Accounting grads, for instance, are getting average starting offers of $23,376, a 7.5 percent increase over the average July 1987 offer, the CPC reported.

Among the other majors and average starting salary offers reported were: mechanical engineers ($29,100), allied health graduates ($24,048), nursing students ($24,444), banking and finance grads ($22,056), human resources majors ($19,284), hotel and restaurant students ($19,032), advertising majors ($18,576) and journalism grads ($18,624).

When people die, it's OK to point out Greek system's bad apples

It may have occurred over 1,000 miles from UCF, but a party hosted by the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity at Rutgers University has helped continue ancient evil stereotypes associated with fraternities while at the same time putting yet another black mark on the Greek system that exists across America.

The specific incident dealt with James Callahan, a freshman at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J. Callahan, a Lambda Chi Alpha pledge, died of alcohol poisoning during a fraternity drinking binge. The death has caused Edward J. Bloustein, the president of Rutgers, to call for an examination of the Greek system at the university and to recommend possible regulation of the Greek system or even ending the university's recognition of Greek-letter fraternities.

This is yet another blow to the Greek system, which hardly needed it, since it has long suffered from negative images. One of the biggest is that of hazing.

Greeks and universities have worked hard to try and eliminate such things as forcing pledges to drink excessive amounts of alcohol and then do calisthenics until they vomit.

Yet, no matter how much Greeks have tried, or how much the rituals of hazing have been purged from the initiation process, the hazing image is still associated with the Greek system, and it may be a long time before they can shake that ill-found specter.

Sadly, what goes unnoticed in all the bad press is the fact that fraternities and sororities do a number of quality service activities, as well as providing an atmosphere for students to build lasting relationships with one another. Fraternities and sororities have many positive, quality aspects. But if they can't beat the beer-bash and hazing image, then they will continue to suffer.

The Greek systems across the nation must clean up their act, once and for all, by having fraternity and sorority councils that strictly police the Greek system at each university.

As Dave Westol, a former Greek member and a nationally renowned expert on hazing, said during a speech at Florida State, "The decision rests with [the students]. Hazing can be changed externally by lawsuits resulting from injuries, or internally within your individual chapters."

More importantly, Greeks must get to work on these changes and stop complaining that those uninformed people outside the Greek system only look at the few bad things and not the good things they accomplish.

Because when people die, all the good things are wiped off the national viewing slate, and it's hard to look at the positive points when only the bad ones remain.

The decadence of America

Charles Brown recently took me to task for saying the state should not be in the lottery business. Brown's argument was rather muddled, but basically he concluded that "the job of government is not to protect man from himself, but to regulate his interaction with others."

Sounds the same to me, M. Brown, but, as we used to say in a more interesting time, "I can dig where you're coming from."

Brown signed himself as within the history department, a subject in which I am more than mildly interested. My findings from reading history is that the United States of America is on its historically called-for course of decadence, dwindling, and decrease as a major world power. Not to worry. So is the Soviet Union.

All "empires," be they democratic (Greece), titular (Roman, Hitlerian) or republican-mock democratic (USA), have died when they at the same time attempted to obliterate moral certitude and overspend themselves through government (which can be a disease as well as a remedy).

Look at letters to the editor in The Orlando Sentinel or any other strong daily. The heavy majority involve argument about government and the issues stemming thereof: AIDS remedy, the death penalty, seat-belt laws, DWI, roads, malpractice legislation, Ollie North, defense spending, this program, that program, this law, that law, this politician, that politician.

While visiting Miami's Barry College several years ago—attended mostly by wealthy Catholic ladies—I was engaged in discussion with a senior majoring in sociology. Her purpose in life was to promote Marxism in state and/or federal government as a social worker. "We must destroy the family unit," she said, "for that is where all problems lie." Since she was a dean's list student, I'm sure she now works somewhere in the vast government empire promoting her beliefs.

ANDY CAMPANARO

A voice from the wilderness

The last two presidents, Carter and Reagan, have campaigned on a platform to balance the budget. Neither have even really tried to do that once elected. This has caused me, and countless others, to disbelieve anything that any of the two major parties' candidates say. Instead, we either join the half or all Americans that do not vote for a president or switch to the Libertarian party, whose main purpose is a fiscally sound and limited government.

It is not unusual to find government workers who believe in the totality, the comprehensiveness, of the state over the family, church and community. After all, it is their livelihood.

This large working block is now encroached as the major voting and economic block of our society as their numbers have grown from one in six working in government in 1950 to one in every two and a half people directly affected by government now. You'd better believe these government workers vote to maintain their empire.

All this is part of the normal involvement of a healthy, wealthy power on its way to decline. The unwinnable wars of Korea and Vietnam will be followed by others, and in our children's lifetime, other nations will rise to become giants—countries that we now scorn as so-called emerging nations.

I don't worry about this trend because we will do quite nicely as a decadent and declined democracy. America as a second- or third-rate power will still be quite a nice place to live, at least in my lifetime.

It'll be harder for my children, but they are a product of their times and know how to fix their computers.

Editor:

I wish to put a young lady's mind at ease. I also wish to clear any further questions in the future (no pun intended) in regard to "Overnight Guests." The letter I am referring to is in the Feb. 18, 1988 issue of The Future. "Housing Office Ineffective," to be more specific.

If a situation arises where someone's privacy is invaded, or their rights are infringed upon, you should; first, talk it over with your roommate; second, if the first gets you nowhere, discuss the situation with your R.A. In turn, your R.A. will be in touch with the Head R.A. and Mrs. C. Hartzler, assistant director of Housing and Residence Life.

Being a "dormite," one knows the above-mentioned solution. Even if one does not know, as a "citizen" one should feel the responsibility and take action anyway.

My personal opinion to the situation is if you can't beat 'em, join 'em. Tell them to save a zit or two for you. Thank you for hearing from the "other side."

Cox scored several key baskets to keep the Knights close.

"Bo played a good game as she penetrated well and drew a foul or scored," said Knight. "Anita Terlecky, Marni Schmidt and Sherry Asplen also played well."

"It was an overall team effort that kept us in the ball game."

Schmidt, Asplen and Nina Nunes scored 12 points apiece for the Knights. Schmidt also led UCF with 10 rebounds.

The loss dropped UCF's record to 4-19 overall and 1-9 in the conference. Georgia Southern, the New South Women's Athletic Conference leader, raised its record to 15-8 overall and 7-2 in conference play.

Knight felt this game could be morally important when conference tournament play starts (March 3-5).

"We showed that we could play with them tonight," said Knight. "We will most likely play them in the first round of the conference tournament and hopefully the third time will prove lucky."

WEEKEND SPLIT

The UCF baseball team split a two-game weekend series with the University of Georgia. The Knights took a 5-1 win on Friday night behind the pitching of Rich Polak. Saturday, however, the Bulldogs took out their frustration with a 23-5 thrashing. UCF plays at Stetson today at 3 p.m.

A losing weekend for UCF hoopsters

Rival Rollins squashes men, 98-82

by Glenn Carrasquillo
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Despite strong UCF crowd support, the Knights dropped a 98-82 decision to crosstown rival Rollins College for the second straight year Saturday at Winter Park.

At least half of the 1,874 in attendance at the Enyart-Alumni Fieldhouse were pulling for the Knights.

"Their team game is exceptional," said UCF coach Phil Carter, whose Knights dropped an 80-74 game to the Tars last year at UCF. "Whenever a team scores that many free throws, it's going to be tough to beat them."

Rollins, first in NCAA Division II in free throw shooting (79.6 percent) and sixth in scoring (93.8 ppg.), scored 34 points at the charity stripe. Rollins, 18-7, is gunning for its second straight 20-game winning season and a shot at the Division II playoffs.

"We knew they were tough," said senior guard Chris Wallen, who finished with a team high 22 points and connected on four 3-point shots.

However, Wallen's offensive tenacity wasn't enough to lift UCF past Rollins. Every attempt UCF made to get back into the game was stopped by a determined Rollins squad.

"We got going in the second half," said Rollins coach Tom Klusman. "This was a big victory for us and will help us finish the season strong."

Women fall to Georgia Southern

by Chris Brady
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The UCF women's basketball team gave Georgia Southern all it wanted before bowing to the Eagles 78-68 Saturday at the UCF Gymnasium.

"We gave a much better effort tonight than the first time we played them," said coach Beverly Knight, whose team lost to Georgia Southern 98-67 last month. "We scared them tonight."

The Eagles had a 16-2 run midway through the first half to break an 8-8 tie. Down 38-28 at halftime, UCF roared back to within two at 40-38 with 16:03 left in the game. The Knights had a chance to tie but turned the ball over.

Georgia Southern scored seven straight points to pull ahead for good, with Regina Days scoring six of the points. The closest UCF came after that was 74-68 with 46 seconds left. However, the Eagles connected on four free throws to ice the game.

Days, the 1986 New South Women's Athletic Conference co-player of the year, and Phyllette Blake, last year's player of the year, combined for 51 of Georgia Southern's 78 points. Scoring mostly from the inside, Blake scored 29 points while Days finished with 22 points and 11 rebounds.

UCF was led by freshman Bo Cox, who scored 14 points and pulled down six rebounds.

Playing top spot isn't anything new for Curry

Ocala tennis star proved worthiness to critics with tough fight against Rollins' top-ranked Pat Emmet

by Scott Broden
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR

The challenge for sophomore Pat Curry is to play No. 1 for the UCF men's tennis team.

Curry, a 6-4, 175 pounder, uses a powerful serve and a quick net game to meet that challenge. An opponent typically sees a zooming serve followed by a lengthy left-hander with dark hair and dark tinted glasses rushing the net.

Originally from Pennsylvania, Curry came to UCF from highly ranked Ocala Forest High School, where he played on a doubles team that placed fourth in the state tournament.

Curry chose UCF because of its strong engineering program. "It had a big influence on my choice, but also I knew I'd play tennis in my first year if I came here," Curry said. "All I knew about UCF before I came here was that Mike DeFranco had played here (three years before) and that he was the top-ranked player in the nation (Division II)."

UCF has since struggled at the Division I level. Curry, who knew he would start at a rebuilding program, played No. 4 all last year and won 17 of 21 matches.

He recently earned the No. 1 position by defeating senior team captain Jeff Davis, who had held UCF's top position all last year. "I knew I had nothing to lose, so I just tried to play my best," Curry said. "I don't think Davis played well at all. The pressure was on him, and I had nothing to lose."

Curry beat Davis in two different challenge matches in straight sets. Davis has since quit the team.

"I knew he'd be disappointed because he played No. 1 all last year, but I really didn't expect him to quit."

Curry proved that he was UCF's No. 1 player when he played Rollins' Pat Emmet, the top-ranked Division II player in the nation. Curry lost 7-6, 7-5. "I didn't know I was going to play him until five minutes before the match," Curry said of playing Emmet, who was supposed to sit the match out.

"It caught me off guard. I played real well. I had a set point in the first set, and I was up a break in the second set. But he won the the big points and has a lot more experience than me."

Curry said he looks forward to playing Emmet again, which could take place when the Knights travel to Rollins at season's end. "I can beat him if I'm playing good enough. My game
